

This simple comparison will illustrate how light, cheery colours combine to lift a room from the unimpressive to something alive and interesting.

COMPARISON—Ceiling: Berger's Matone, Cream; Frieze: Matone, Champagne; Walls: Matone, Light Terra Cotta; Woodwork and Furniture: Berger's Synthelac Satin Finish, Champagne and Sun Tan.

IN selecting colours for interior decoration it is important to bear in mind that light colours have the higher reflection values. Their use, therefore, contributes to better lighting, particularly when used on ceilings.

With lighter tints on ceilings, it becomes possible to use selections from a wide range of shades for the decoration of walls and woodwork. In fact, walls done in a lower key are usually preferable to a decorative scheme composed wholly of very light tints. The explanation is that with ample light diffused by sight-saving lamps and modern lighting fixtures—and reflected by a light-tinted ceiling—the eyes find the deeper shades of walls comfortable and pleasing.

Kitchens have a great deal of woodwork. By finishing the panels of the cupboards and doors in Berger's Synthelac or "Quick" Enamel, in approximately the same light tint as the walls and by using harmonising tints for trimming the frames and window casings, you not only obtain better light value but the room will appear larger and more convenient.

HOW MUCH LIGHT EACH COLOUR REFLECTS

Percentages from gloss and semi-gloss finishes (such as Berger's Synthelac) would naturally be higher because of the greater scope for reflectivity in the glossy surface. NOTE: Owing to the difficulty of matching paint colours in printing ink a slight but unimportant variation will be apparent when comparing the above reproductions with the actual Matone tints named.

Look at this kitchen—how heavy and dull. Yet it can be made the embodiment of brightness through judicious use of colour.

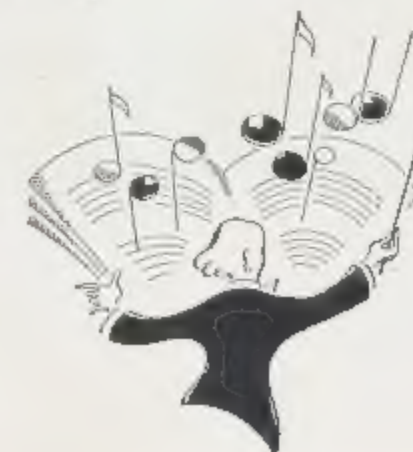

COMPARISON—Ceiling: Berger's Synthelac Satin Finish, White; Frieze: Satin Finish, Special Ivory; Walls: Satin Finish, Maize; Woodwork: Satin Finish, Nile Green; Trim: Synthelac Full Gloss, Lettuce.

IN the kitchen, one should be able to read recipes with accuracy and ease; to examine pots, pans, dishes and cutlery for their cleanness; to use sharp knives and to work at the stove with perfect safety. Therefore, light-coloured, washable paint is indispensable for all kitchen surfaces.

In the laundry, particularly the basement laundry, make the most of daylight from windows which are usually small by painting walls and ceilings white.

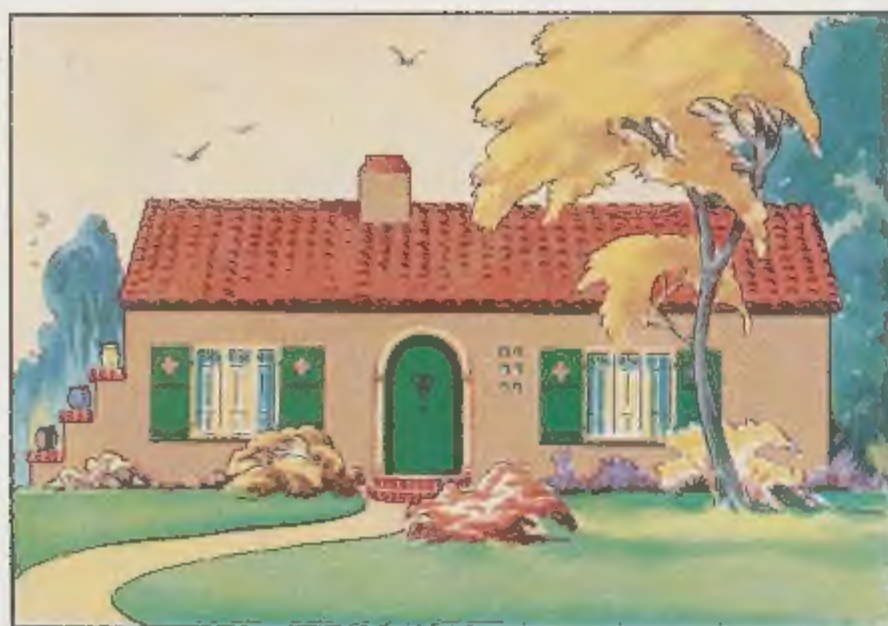

In the sewing room, where the work is most exacting on the eyes, ideal conditions are obtained through the combination of ample illumination, white or a light tint on the ceiling and a restful wall colour—as low a light reflection value as Nile Green 47% or Bath Stone 56% is permissible.

In the living room, dining room, hall and study, colour and style of decoration are important. In order to bring out the full beauty of the furnishings a relatively high level of general illumination is essential. Both natural and artificial light are diffused throughout the room better when light-coloured ceiling tints are employed. And when this is done one is free to employ deeper, richer wall colourings as desired.

It is the outside of the home that provides the first visible expression of taste—and without fresh, gleaming paintwork, in an harmonious ensemble, perfection is lost—no matter how delightful the interior might be.

Here it is where home begins—and where people form their first impressions of your personality.

Let the exterior decoration of YOUR home be an adventure in self-expression, and, according to the architecture, plan your colour scheme to suit your own individuality!

WHICH do you prefer—a bedroom of quiet repose or one of brightness and sunshine? With soft, velvety Matone colours you can make your bedroom light-hearted and buoyant or calm and formal and yet preserve a feeling of rest. With Berger's "Wet Edge" Matone for the walls and ceiling, in combination with Berger's Synthelac (in Full Gloss or Satin Finish) for the woodwork—or for the walls, too, for that matter—you have an endless selection of exquisite colour harmonies. Large or small, bright or dull, your room can be painted to express an entirely different size and mood—the mood of your choice portrayed in a way you'll be proud to display.

For the Lounge . . . .

Here it is necessary to plan for comfort as well as for charm, because it is in the Lounge or Living Room where your guests spend most of their evening with you.

Perhaps a fresh upholstery job on the old chairs—new drapes at the windows—fresh paint on the walls—and those ever-necessary adjuncts to a livable room, such as books and bookcases. Then you will have a room—informal, comfortable and cheery—a room to live in and enjoy.

In the colour photograph of this delightful room the walls were first treated with Berger's Tex (Texture Wall Finish) before painting as in the specification.

New Colour Notes . . . For the Dining Room

Make this room friendly, vibrant, alive—as bright as early morning! Here, again, Matone and Synthelac Finishes offer their rich tints through which to attain simplicity, charm and an air of warmth and good cheer. On a very limited purse even the most modest room can be made delightfully radiant through the depth and brightness of these paint colours.

Beauty Treatment for the Bathroom . . . .

The importance of bright, rich colour in the Bathroom cannot be over-stressed, for it symbolises cleanliness—the very purpose of the bathroom. Here there must be light, and plenty of it. And colourful towels and floor rugs will add just that note of brilliance and freshness to complete a perfectly harmonious colour scheme.

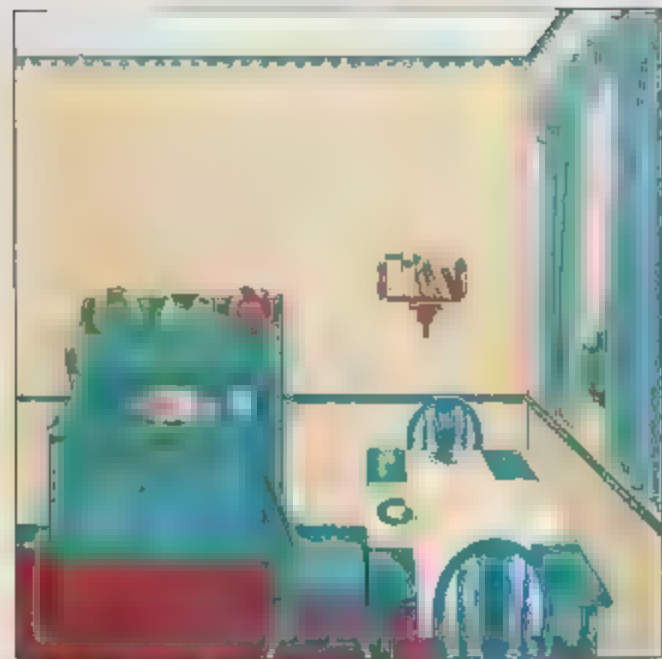

In this cheery bathroom the walls, when not tiled, were first treated with Berger's Tex (Texture Wall Finish) prior to painting as specified at left.

The delightfully compact yet spacious-looking Kitchen with Pyralis trap owes much to its rich but colour scheme. The panel of glass bricks allows a flood of natural light to combat what might otherwise be a heavy-looking ceiling. Coruscant Blue whilst the masses of White (Synthelac Full Gloss) and the cheery "Synthelac Special Ivory" combine to give an air of spotless cleanliness. The note of Yellow QUICK Enamel on Cupboard Handles, the Rich Blue QUICK Enamel Conister in the Dark Blue mottled Lino complete a perfectly balanced scheme.

PERHAPS no other room in the home calls for more colour—more gaiety than the Kitchen. And no other room is more easy to transform with such simple tools as a brush and a few pots of rich colour.

The Kitchen is the nerve centre of YOUR home. Make it bright and cheerful, gay and entertaining. You'll find your daily tasks grow lighter when walls and wood work are their glistening best!

Verandahs and Paths are Important . . .

Nothing can mar the neat appearance of a home more quickly and thoroughly than drab paths and old, worn-looking verandah furniture.

No home can escape the wear and tear of living but it's such a simple job to keep ugliness out of sight with radiant colour. Fascinating, too once you get started—and you'll find the transformation really amazing considering the small amount of effort and cost expended.

The Magic of Colour . .

brings enduring beauty to odd pieces

The small things, the odd things, the little extras here and there—as well as cupboards and tables, bedsteads and toys—can be made to LIVE again through sparkling, joyous colour. The cost? Almost nothing—nothing but the colour itself—and the little time it takes to brush it on!

In the square below the effectiveness of Berger's "QUICK" Varnish Stain (Cedar) is demonstrated. Notice how it accentuates the colourings of walls and furniture. Bookcase is in Berger's Satin Finish, Jonquil—the walls, Satin Finish, Maize.

"Do come Inside"...

The first room your guests and friends enter is the Reception Hall or Lobby. It is here where first impressions are made and where cheery welcome should be the keynote of decoration.

Divest the room of all unnecessary frills—and with colour and light make it the airy, spacious (in effect at least) room that it should be. Above all, be careful to keep the scheme simple and direct to achieve that distinction which good taste demands.

There's Romance in this Book—

ROMANCE in colour—for you and the house that you call home.

Through the simple but effective use of colour you can give expression to your own personality—and at the same time lift your home away from the dull, every-day conventions of decoration. Inside and out, your home can be made as gay and as warmly welcome as Spring—and you will have the satisfaction of knowing, too, that beauty and protection are one and the same thing—paint!

The illustrated decorative suggestions in the pages that follow have been prepared with great care. They may be adapted to the smallest or the most pretentious dwelling. At least, they will show that the sunshine CAN be brought to the duller corners and that rich, joyous colour can add much to the prideful enjoyment of "Home."

All of the finishes referred to are available under the Berger label from Berger Agents everywhere, and complete colour cards will gladly be supplied on request.
